S3 Hong Kong New Academic Structure (NAS) - A Learning Journey for Career Aspirations and Further Studies (Cantonese and English)

Globalisation, the development of information technology and a knowledge-based economy, along with economic restructuring, are leading to unprecedented worldwide changes. Hong Kong senior secondary curriculum aims to prepare students for life-long learning and whole-person development in an effort to enhance the human resources of Hong Kong and its competitiveness as an international city. This session will focus on:

- How does the NAS respond to the macro changes in economic, scientific and technological development in Hong Kong and the world?
- What do students learn in the NAS to prepare themselves for future careers and further studies?
- What does data tell us about our students' performance in the context of early NAS implementation as well as the 21st century manpower requirement?
- How do the multiple pathways of students enable employers to recruit suitable talents?
